Clear lines drawn in next city election — on the map

What will council's move mean for you and how will it affect your councillors?

JEREMY SIMES/METRO

When you go to the polls next year, you may be voting in an entirely different ward.

That's because the city plans to change boundaries for the October 2017 election. On Tuesday, the executive committee passed a recommendation to bring the changes to council.

The move will affect southern Edmonton. It includes moving the communities of Allard, Blackburne, Blackmud Creek, Callaghan, Cashman, Cavanagh, Richford and Twin Brooks from Ward 9 to Ward 10.

Also, the communities of Jackson Heights and Kiniski Gardens will be moved from Ward 12 to Ward 11.

Metro breaks down why council has decided to draw new lines, what it means for you and how it'll affect councillors.

1 Why change the boundaries?

According to committee members, some councillors were representing more constituents than their fair share. For example, Ward 9 and Ward 12 represents populations of 109,943 and 102,389 people, respectively.

So, some of those residents will move to Ward 10 and 11, which currently represents 60,170 and 61,083 people, respectively.

Once the changes occur, the city expects Ward 9 to represent 87,083 constituents, Ward 10 with 78,075 people, Ward 11 with 78,075 and Ward 12 with 92,332.

2 What do the changes mean for you?

First off, you may be part of different communities with a whole new set of issues. Your councillor may also be different. For example, Ward 10 won't just represent more established communities; it'll encompass neighbourhoods on the outskirts. This means more diverse representation, according to Laura Kennedy, the city's returning officer.

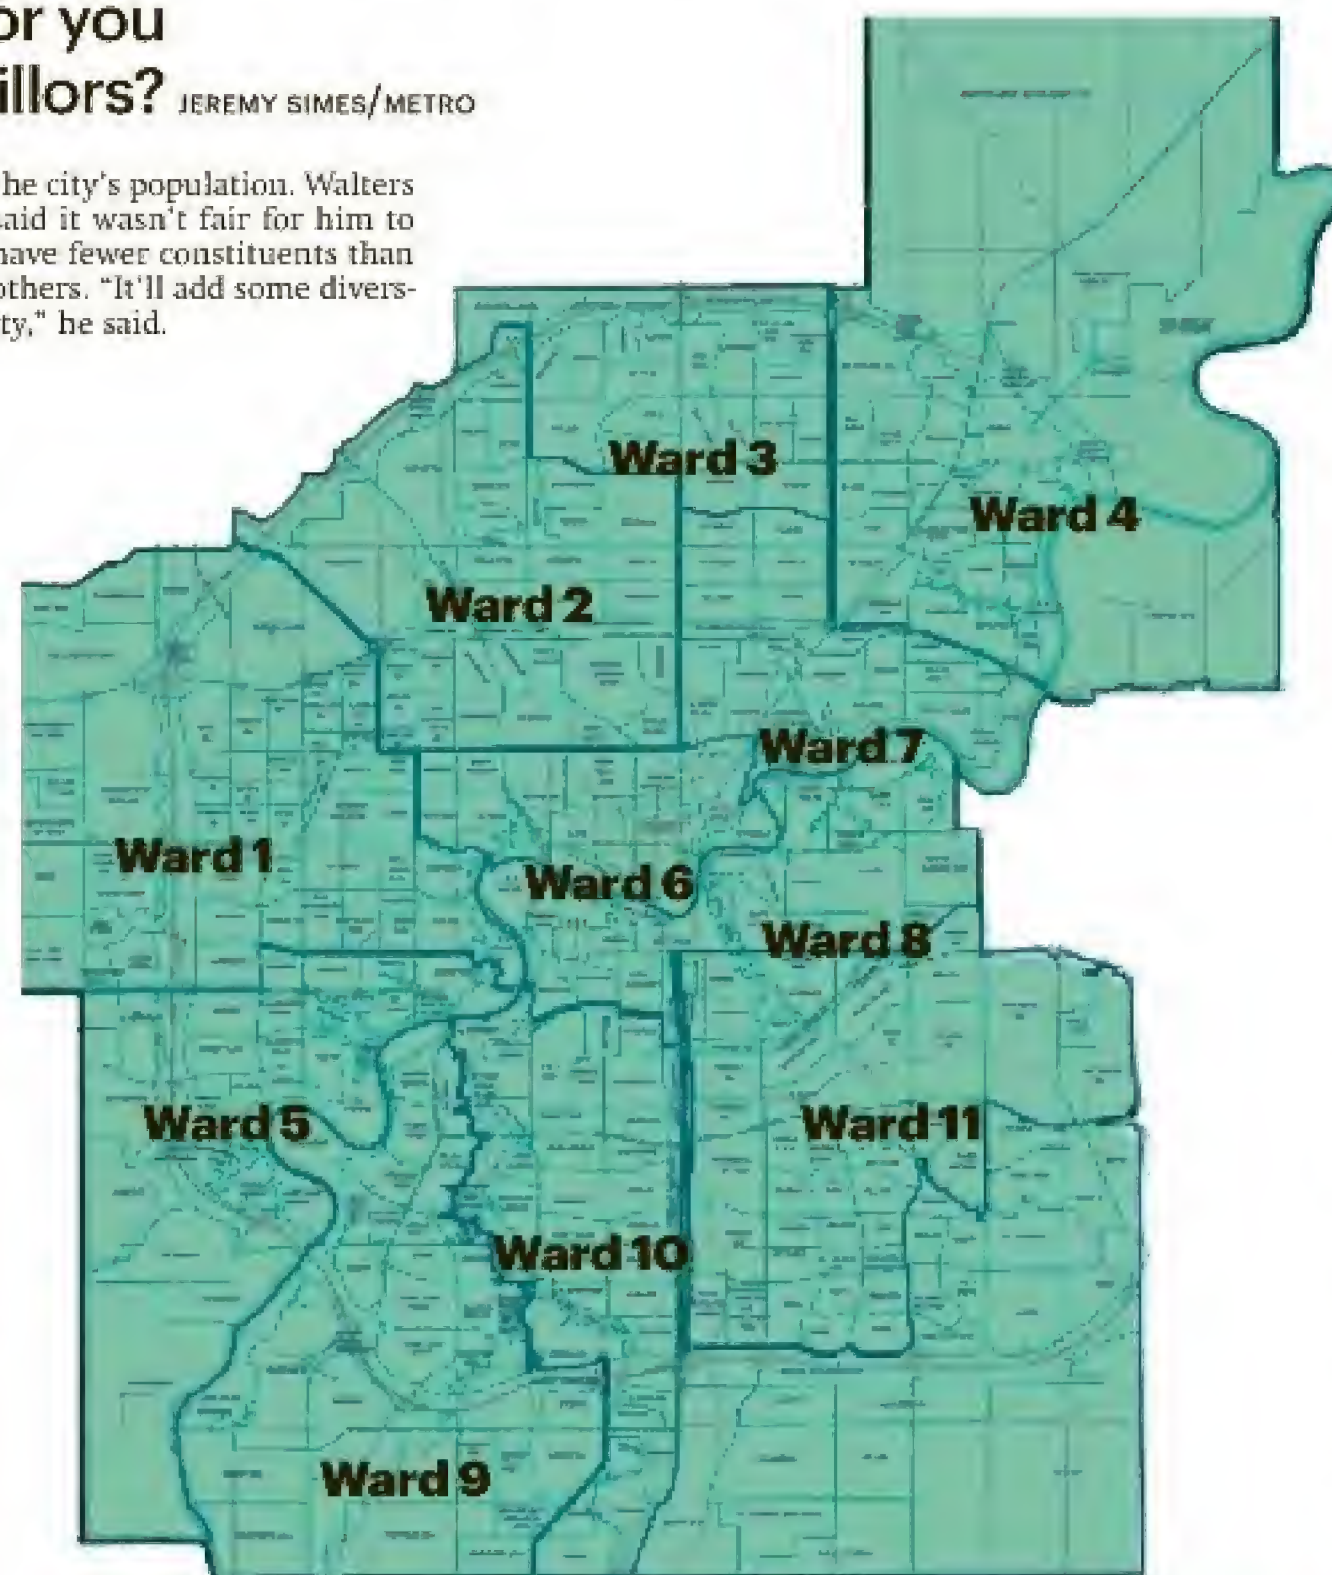

She says diversity is one area she looks at when establishing ward boundaries. Kennedy looks for an equalization of population, ensures wards don't cross rivers or break community leagues.

3 How do the councillors feel?

The councillors affected by the new lines include Bryan Anderson (Ward 9), Michael Walters (Ward 10), Mike Nickel (Ward 11) and Moe Banga (Ward 12).

Both Banga and Anderson said they're sad to see some of their communities go, but understand the boundaries need to better reflect the city's population. Walters said it wasn't fair for him to have fewer constituents than others. "It'll add some diversity," he said.

EDUCATION

Parents, kids to have say in curriculum rewrite

Kevin Maimann
Metro | Edmonton

The Alberta government launched its six-year curriculum overhaul Tuesday with a survey that it says is "unprecedented" in scope.

The province is rewriting curriculum from Kindergarten through Grade 12, and its first step is gathering feedback with a two-part online survey that will hear from kids, parents, experts and educators alike.

Education Minister David Eggen said the survey is "unprecedented in the history of education." Speaking at Queen Elizabeth high school, Eggen said the government is seeking a wide range of opinions and a sense of equality.

He said Alberta will be the first province to offer comprehensive education on residential schools and indigenous history, by partnering with Winnipeg's Truth and Reconciliation Institute.

Premier Rachel Notley stressed the importance of updating what students learn to help diversify the economy.

The revamp involves arts, language arts, math, social studies, science and wellness. All curriculum will be developed in English and French for the first time.

The new plan for kindergarten to Grade 4 is scheduled to be done by 2018, while the curriculum for Grades 5 to 8 is set for 2019 and a high-school plan will be rolled out in phases from 2020 to 2022.

Rodeo finals staying in city

Saskatoon was to hold event but deal talks broke down

Kevin Maimann
Metro | Edmonton

Edmonton has gone from having no rodeos at one point this year to two rodeos — after Northlands pulled a surprise move by roping back in the Canadian Finals Rodeo this week.

The city announced in May it had withdrawn its bid for the CFR after hosting it for 43 years, and three months after, the Oilers Entertainment Group announced a 10-day “western lifestyle” party to take its place in conjunction with Professional Bull Riding.

But on Monday, news emerged that Northlands — which has traditionally hosted the CFR — had struck a deal to bring the event back to Edmonton’s Northlands Coliseum for 2017 and 2018.

The Canadian Professional Rodeo Association pulled out of a memorandum of agreement with the city of Saskatoon in order to keep the event in Alberta, which is not sitting well with Saskatoon officials.

“I’ve been at this for 19 years and we’ve put out a lot of bids from this office. This is the first time we’ve ever gone to an MOA and then not fulfilled,” Saskatoon Tourism President and CEO Todd Brandt said Tuesday. “It was unusual to say the least.”

Edmonton officials had said in May that the CPRA was demanding a deal that would put taxpayers on the hook for an unacceptable amount of risk.

I’ve been at this for 19 years and we’ve put out a lot of bids from this office. This is the first time we’ve ever gone to an MOA and then not fulfilled.

An unhappy Saskatoon Tourism President and CEO Todd Brandt said Tuesday

The CPRA created the memorandum agreement with Saskatoon in July, but some of its leaders resigned soon after.

“We were asked to just hold on as they restructured the board, looked for a new CEO,” Brandt said. He claimed the association did not mention until three weeks ago that it had restarted negotiations with Northlands. The CPRA declined comment Tuesday but is expected to offer more details at a press conference Wednesday morning.

CFR was already scheduled to take place at Northlands from Nov. 9-13 this year.

+ BACKGROUND

Northlands will benefit from return of CFR

Edmonton city councillor Andrew Knack said the return of the Canadian Finals Rodeo is a “good news story” that will help Northlands bring in revenue while the non-profit maps out its future.

Northlands has been mulling its prospects since losing the Oilers, its biggest moneymaker, to Rogers Place. “It’s better to leave it activated while we’re working our way through this plan than to leave it stagnant,” Knack said.

Northlands President and CEO Tim Reid has threatened to nix signature events like K Days and Farmfair International due to lost revenue, and the organization was dealt another blow when city administration rejected its Vision 2020 redevelopment proposal in August.

Knack said the CFR has always been a positive event for the city and suggested it could run in succession with the Oilers Entertainment Group’s Professional Bull Riding event next year.

DEVELOPMENT

280-metre tower too much for river valley, resident says

Jeremy Simes
Metro | Edmonton

Joelle Reiniger moved to Boyle Street three years ago for its proximity to the river valley. But she doesn't want a 280-metre tower along the top bank to set the tone of future growth.

"It does stick out like a sore thumb," Reiniger said, referring to the proposed, 80-storey Quarters Hotel and Residences.

"The river valley is Edmonton's greatest asset."

The mixed-use development, located on Jasper Avenue and Grierson Hill Road in the Quarters, "will turn under-used and damaged land into a link," according to Aldritt Land Corporation.

But Kurt Borth, a University of Alberta researcher who specializes in housing location, said the Quarters could instead benefit from "missing middle" housing.

Missing middle housing is a range of multi-unit or clustered housing in scale with single-family homes to meet urban living demands. Think Paris. Think parts of Toronto. Think New York.

He said missing middle developments make communities more vibrant, adding Edmonton's Blatchford community is the closest thing the city has in that style right now.

"Putting up all this medium density would be great. It would be vibrant," he said. "But then there's the timeline of getting it done."

Other key, smaller Quarters developments include the Marriott Hotel, a container housing project and the "Artists Quarters," a nearly net-zero project for artists' residences and affordable housing.

Brent Toderian, who was the centre city planning manager for Calgary, couldn't comment on the proposal. But in regards to general city-making values, he said mature cities don't feel the need to "be the tallest at the expense of its values."

Joelle Reiniger is concerned with the height of a new proposed 80-storey tower set for the top of the river bank. KEVIN TUONG / FOR METRO

He noted the City of Calgary chose to trim the size of the Bow, a tower designed by Foster and Partners, so that it didn't cast shadows at key times on the river.

"It said a lot about us, I think, that we didn't let a 'we're the biggest' ego statement lead us to make the wrong decision," he said.

David Benjestorf, who represents Aldritt Land Corporation, said the company chose to build the tower tall for a number of reasons.

Edmonton's greatest asset.

Joelle Reiniger,

He said density and unit count displace the high development costs, which included environmental remediation. He said there will also be costs to provide additional parking stalls and a two-acre public park.

There's also history to the site, he added, noting the Aldritt family always intended to build something "iconic" on the land.

Reiniger said she hopes the tower, if approved, doesn't cause other developers to also go big.

"I do think there's a place for tall towers in the city," she said. "But I don't think we need one embedded into the river valley bank. We need to be very cautious about making an extreme departure from the height limits."

City to ease parking regs

HOMEOWNERS

Rule to have two spots, not one, at home may be lifted

Ameya Charnalia
For Metro | Edmonton

City administration is asking council to change an old parking regulation that requires residents in low-density housing to build at least two parking spaces per dwelling.

The change — if approved by council in early 2017 — will apply to single detached homes, duplexes, row houses and secondary suites.

Council asked administration to examine some of the city's decades-old parking regulations, said Anne Stevenson, a senior planner with the city.

Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon and Ottawa were among the cities administration had a look at, Stevenson said.

"All of these cities have a one parking stall requirement so we thought that we were really out of step."

Under the current city regulations, even people who might live alone and barely drive need to provide two parking spaces on their property.

Current regulations, Stevenson said, can be restricting, taking up space and not allowing residents to create larger gardens or build larger patios.

"The biggest advantage is it gives Edmontonians more choice for how they use their properties."

Homeowners who still want two or more parking stalls can do so under the proposed changes. The changes will not impact residents who already have multiple spaces.

The change also complements the city's growth strategy focusing on encouraging the use of public transit and other modes of transportation, said Stevenson.

"It reduces the overall cost of building a house upfront which means that people might be able to build a house close to transit and then be able to make use of that transit."

Residence assistants ready to organize

Alex Boyd
Metro | Edmonton

Some residence assistants at the University of Alberta — the paid students responsible for helping new students living on campus — are now looking to unionize.

"We're basically just looking at a way we can advocate for ourselves," said residence assistant Kyle Monda.

He described the job as an "unusual" one that requires everything from planning events for first-year students to being on site when medical emergencies arise. RAs also do overnight, on-call shifts.

They're required to live in the community they're working in and make a starting wage of $550 a month, which Monda said isn't a lot for the work they do.

Monda is part of a group that approached the University of Alberta Non-Academic Staff Association, who already represents more than 6,000 support staff on campus.

The association has, in turn, applied to the Alberta Labour Relations Board to represent all students employed in residence services, which include residence assistants, residence life interns and ambassadors.

The board will decide Oct. 24 whether or not they're eligible. If they are, resident assistants will vote on whether

The University declined to comment on the matter while the application was still before the Alberta Labour Relations Board.

Saskatchewan brewer takes Alberta to court

A Saskatchewan brewer is taking Alberta to court over its new beer markup policy.

Saskatoon-based Great Western Brewing Company announced Tuesday it is filing a court challenge.

It argues Alberta's rules violate constitutional protections on trade freedoms among provinces. Michael Micovcin, president of Great Western Brewing, said the tax structure disadvantages brewers from outside the province.

Alberta Finance spokeswoman Leah Holoiday, said the markup is fair to all producers.

Donation thrift shop's lease is up at the end of the month

Alex Boyd
Metro | Edmonton

Flipping through a rack of winter coats Tuesday, Carole McIntosh comes across a thrift store score: A cozy knee-length winter coat with snap buttons. Price? $29.

"I'm here all the time, looking for the best deal for my buck. It's the only way I can make ends meet," she said, standing at the Edmonton Emergency Relief Services Society Tuesday.

Part thrift shop, part donation centre, the society has long been a valuable resource for people across the city. But now its future is up in the air.

The society's lease on their 24,000 square foot space, on 104 Street near the new arena, is up at the end of the month.

With a fixed income and three grandkids, Carole McIntosh relies on the thrift store for both staples and gifts. She's also started volunteering there. KEVIN TUONG/FOR METRO

While they won't be out on the street immediately, the building's owner, Alberta Infrastructure, intends to sell.

"The building is at the end of its life, and the systems are at risk of failing, but as long as we own the building and it is safe and habitable, the society is welcome to stay," Minister of Infrastructure Brian Mason said.

The society has been in the same location for almost 30 years, and in that time the province has been a generous landlord: They charge the society no rent and cover about $92,000 in annual operational costs. But while Mason said they're looking at other buildings owned by the province as alternatives, there aren't any contenders yet.

Nicole Geoffroy, the society's spokesperson, said they're asking community members for suggestions for alternative spaces.

"Everybody is definitely feeling very nervous," she said.

In addition to the thrift store, the Society is a major centre for donations of used clothing, household goods and toiletries intended for people in need.

"Whenever there is someone who needs help — whether that be a fire victim, refugee, low income person, the list is endless, then there is never a price tag for anything here," Geoffroy said.

They moved more than 1,000 pallets of used clothing just for Fort McMurray evacuees.

"We don't ask questions or judge, we just let people come in and leave with what they need."

Survey of homeless numbers

Ameya Charnalia

A count crucial to understanding the shifting patterns of homelessness is taking place in Edmonton this week.

Data from the count provides a snapshot into whether homelessness is on the rise or not, said Susan McGee, CEO of Homeward Trust, a community based organization dedicated to ending homelessness in Edmonton.

"It gives us some very high level information about demographic changes and it connects us with a broader community of agencies."

This year's count, which takes place Wednesday and Thursday, comes on the heels of the government announcing a pilot project called Navigator. It hopes to connect remanded inmates with family and friends, and reduce the number of inmates being released into homelessness.

In 2014, Homeward Trust noted 2,307 Edmontonians were homeless.

Jeremy Simes

Alberta Health Services requires more than $93 million to upgrade the province's sterile medical equipment and, if funds aren't approved, the health agency worries for patient and staff safety.

On Tuesday, the Wildrose released a document through freedom of information that found some of the province's medical reprocessing sites are in dire need of care.

For example, the Foothills Medical Centre in Calgary and the Red Deer Regional Hospital require $27.5 million and $26.3 million in funds to upgrade medical devices that reprocess equipment.

"MDR is an essential service, supporting patient safety, and directly impacts the prevention of transmission of infections from reusable medical devices used in the delivery of health care," AHS said in the document, which hasn't yet been made public.

If funds aren't approved, the document warned services may be delayed or cancelled if the equipment becomes obsolete.

"The most critical risks of non-approval are patient and staff safety, with the threat of infection transmissions being increasingly more likely," the document read.

Accreditation Canada, which reviews medical device reprocessing services every four years, found some areas of "non-compliance" with the sterilization equipment.

"There are certainly always areas where improvement is possible or required and we use the valuable information from internal and external reviews of MDR services to inform, prioritize and address issues," the spokesman said.

AHS has identified medical device reprocessing and provincial sterile instrument as one of 21 high-priority projects in AHS's 2016 Capital Submission.

AHS has also completed reviews of 115 sites earlier this year. Each of these sites is currently working to address inconsistencies.

Officials to look at all causes

Aviation experts say officials investigating the cause of last week's fatal plane crash in British Columbia's Interior will be considering all possible causes behind the incident.

A business jet bound for Calgary hit the ground shortly after taking off from Kelowna, B.C., killing all four people on board, including former Alberta premier Jim Prentice.

No distress call or signal was made as the Cessna Citation plummeted more than 2,600 metres, leading some observers to speculate on what happened.

Brendan Kapuscinski of Beyond Risk Management says officials at the federal agency use the SHELL model in their investigations, which stands for software, hardware, environment and liveware, which refers to any human involvement.

The aircraft wasn't carrying an in-flight data or voice recorder, which a safety board spokesman says will make it challenging to determine a definitive reason for the crash. The investigation is expected to take at least a year.

Startups thriving despite recession

ECONOMY

Job loss has sparked the entrepreneur spirit in some

Kevin Maimann
Metro | Edmonton

Edmonton's startup scene seems to be thriving despite — or maybe because of — Alberta's struggling economy.

Startup Edmonton CEO Tiffany Linke-Boyko said job loss has brought an entrepreneurial spirit out in some, and that spirit will be celebrated with the annual Startup Week.

"I think people either are concerned about the loss of their job or have lost their job, and thought, 'Here's a chance for me to take that idea I've been thinking about for a while and start creating on it,'" Linke-Boyko said.

"We've seen an increase in people being interested and starting up companies even with this downturn in the economy."

Startup Edmonton has a series of events planned this week, including a launch party Thursday at Epcor tower to celebrate eight businesses that are launching new products.

Linke-Boyko named Jobber, Granify, Yardstick and Gfyat as recent Edmonton success stories.

Startup Edmonton is also opening the doors at its 14,000-square-foot space in the Mercer Warehouse downtown all week, for people who might be considering their own startup or just want to get a feel for what it's like to work there.

"Maybe they feel intimidated because they feel like they have to have lots of technical skills, or be working in that industry ongoing. But instead it's all about getting connected with a community people might not normally be connected to," Linke-Boyko said.

"Oftentimes when people see other people doing things, they might have thought about doing it, but will then feel inspired to try it out themselves."

Startup Edmonton launched in 2009 and was acquired by the Edmonton Economic Development Corporation in 2014.

It currently has more than 660 members, including more than 120 working out of the Mercer space.

Right to remain secular

A private school found to have discriminated against two Muslim students by not allowing them to pray is challenging the ruling in the Alberta Court of Appeal. Webber Academy in Calgary is arguing in its appeal filed in mid-September that it has a right to remain secular.

Last summer, a lower-court judge upheld a decision by the Alberta Human Rights Commission that found Webber Academy unlawfully discriminated against the students.

Pot talk in Colorado

Alberta's justice minister is going to Colorado this week to discuss pot policy with officials.

Hearing from experts in Denver about the challenges of legalizing marijuana can help Alberta develop its own framework for legalization, Justice Minister and Solicitor General Kathleen Ganley said in a statement.

The province is looking to identify critical challenges with legalizing cannabis, which the federal government plans to do by the spring of 2017. METRO

Alberta is #ReadyForHer

Status of Women Minister Stephanie McLean kicked off a campaign called #ReadyForHer in Edmonton on Tuesday, with the first event in a four-city tour to encourage women in the province to run.

"Half of Alberta's population is women, but men hold most of the positions. I want every woman to know Alberta is ready for her to run," McLean said, in a release.

In the 2013 municipal elections only 26 per cent of people elected in the province were women. METRO

A year after election Liberals still poll strong

POLITICS

Trudeau's personal approval in 60th percentile

It's been a year since Canadian voters took a leap of faith, placing a bet on deficit-financed government ambition after two decades of cuts, caution and small-c conservatism.

"Canadians have spoken," Justin Trudeau said late in the evening last Oct. 19 after a federal election that swept his third-place Liberals to office with a comfortable 15-seat majority.

Twelve months later, the Liberals remain ambitious and hopeful, even if their reach exceeds their grasp.

Whether it be driving middle-class economic growth and alleviating inequality, fixing First Nations' relationships with the Crown, putting the country on a sustainable path to a low-carbon economy, getting natural resources to world markets, or any of another half-dozen complex initiatives, the fairest assessment would be that Trudeau's lofty vision remains a work in progress.

Justin Trudeau's Liberals swept to power last October with a promise of a more open government that better reflects the values and expectations of Canadians. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The government's wish list includes leveraging private sector investment in a new infrastructure investment bank, unleashing the recreational marijuana market, plotting a clear path to Canada's 2030 emissions targets, hashing out home care and pharmacare promises and revamping the electoral system.

Yet multiple public opinion surveys by a cross-section of research companies have Liberal support consistently in the mid-40s to low 50s — an almost gravity-defying run — with Trudeau's personal approval ratings into the 60th percentile.

However, attributing the government's popularity simply to style is not the whole picture, argued Phillip Resnick, professor emeritus at the University of British Columbia.

Their big-spending first budget, which put the country on a path to a $30-billion deficit this year by broadly boosting middle-income family benefits, cutting middle-income taxes and committing billions for infrastructure, was a generational shift for non-recessionary times.

It's a massive fiscal policy bet that has yet to show dividends, said Douglas Porter, chief economist at BMO Financial Group.

"Arguably, it's too early," said Porter, pointing to the big Liberal "showpiece" Canada child benefit, which didn't kick in until July while the most recent GDP numbers only include August.

UN working group studying racism

Gilbert Ngabo
Metro | Toronto

A special United Nations working group is in Toronto this week to study issues of racism against black people — and plenty of people have plenty to say.

From lack of access to employment, justice and healthcare to the controversial issue of carding and deteriorating relationships with police, members of the city's black community aren't holding back about what needs to be fixed.

"What we have seen is a persistent experience of marginalization and systemic discrimination," said Ndija Anderson, a research lawyer with the African Canadian Legal Clinic.

The firm, which provides legal support and representation to African Canadians in race-based cases, is one of the groups hosting talks with the five-member UN group.

The group will also travel to Ottawa, Halifax, Montreal and other cities, talking with politicians, community organizations and activists. Recommendations born from what they hear will be presented to the federal government and the UN.

The mission comes at a time when discussions about discrimination against black people have reached a high in Canada and the United States, with Black Lives Matter movements accusing police of excessive force.

Anderson said the bigger problem lies in "implicit biases."

"There's this pervasive notion of looking at African Canadian people as threatening or being criminals and lazy," she said. "As a society we have to acknowledge that we have a problem of systemic racism, and start working on strategies to undo that kind of thinking."

Stop the Violence funds scholarship

Haley Ryan
Metro | Halifax

A new Halifax scholarship fund won't be based on grades or age but aims to help anyone reach their "full potential."

Quentrel Provo of Stop the Violence Spread the Love has launched a crowdfunding initiative, with donations going toward anyone.

Provo said after visiting many schools, he always hears students describing plans for after graduation that involve the workforce or jobs like McDonald's, since universities and colleges are out of reach financially.

Provo said he hopes to help young people "go down the right path rather than leaving them in that stuck position where they're either going to go into the workforce or they're going to go into the streets."

UNIVERSITY OF OTTAWA

'Disgraceful' lewd pub crawl cancelled

An event that reportedly saw students at the University of Ottawa encouraged to perform lewd acts in exchange for points has been cancelled indefinitely as organizers apologized to anyone who was "negatively affected" by the experience.

The school's Science Students' Association, which hosted the so-called Ver's Tour earlier this month, called the event "ill-conceived" and "wrong," adding it "unconditionally condemns" any actions, attitudes and discourse that contribute to, promote or normalize sexual violence and rape culture on campus.

The university itself also denounced the event, in which it said some students were "encouraged to behave disgracefully," and said the incident is a reminder that sexual violence is a societal problem.

The statement from the university came after its French-language student newspaper published a report on a pub crawl where students were allegedly encouraged to rack up points by carrying out a list of activities, such as taking off their clothes and having sex with event judges.

The newspaper reported that the event has been a tradition for many years and many participants are involved in student politics.

It also quoted a past participant who said she signed up thinking it was just a regular pub crawl only to find herself pressured to take off her clothes and be groped by a teammate.

A source reportedly told the paper the event's slogan has long been "It's not peer pressure, it's just your turn."

The Science Students' Association apologized to anyone who "felt unsafe or pressured to do anything at any of our events."

The university, meanwhile, called on the campus community to help change what it called "such disgraceful behaviour" and stressed it has policies in place to prevent sexual violence.

Last rumble before election day

UNITED STATES

Final debate promising to focus on issues

It was barely three weeks ago that Donald Trump opened the first presidential debate by asking, with faux deference, if it was OK to refer to his opponent as "Secretary Clinton."

By Round 2 he was back to calling Hillary Clinton "the devil." Since then, the Republican candidate's scorched-earth campaign tactics have left all sides wondering just how low things will go in the third and final presidential debate, coming up Wednesday night.

For her part, Clinton steps up as a flood of hacked emails provides an unprecedented real-time look into the machinations of a presidential campaign - hers. In the disclosed material, Clinton is shown taking positions in paid, private speeches at odds with some of her public pronouncements. And she is revealed as resistant to advice by aides to apologize for her email practices and clear the air.

Here are some things to watch for in Wednesday's faceoff at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas:

RIGGED

Trump in recent days has tried to deflect attention from the allegations about his sexual advances by complaining that the election process is rigged against him. Without providing any evidence, he wraps together the potential for voter fraud with assertions that his female accusers are part of a plot to smear him. With millions of viewers tuning in, will Trump dwell on conspiracy theories or give voters a more positive reason to vote for him?

HACKED

Largely overshadowed by the allegations against Trump has been WikiLeaks' day-after-day release of thousands of hacked emails from the Clinton campaign. The emails include excerpts of Clinton's closed-door speeches to Wall Street interests and lots of campaign strategizing over how to contain the political damage related to her handling of classified emails and her use of a private email server. Trump has responded with a scattershot series of criticisms about "Clinton corruption," but he has yet to hone a disciplined line of attack.

BREATHE

The campaign took a dramatic detour last week when a series of women came forward with allegations about Trump's sexual advances. Trump's combative response, calling the women "sick" and "liars" and alleging that there's a global conspiracy against him, overtook all other aspects of the campaign for a time. How much oxygen will it suck up in the final debate?

CIVIL WAR

With a number of Republican officials in open revolt against Trump and worried that he will be a drag on the rest of the ticket, watch to see whether Trump gins up more discord with his party.

FINGERS CROSSED

Immigration was hardly mentioned in the first two debates. Social Security never came up.

The national debt has gotten only passing notice. Policy wonks have their fingers crossed that neglected issues will finally get an airing in the final debate. The list of potential topics includes debt and entitlements, immigration, the economy, the Supreme Court and foreign hot spots.

IT'S BAAACK

A subject that both candidates love to dwell on also is teed up for Round 3: "fitness to be president." Trump and Clinton already have made plain their disdain for each other's qualifications to occupy the Oval Office, but they can be counted on to look for new ways to inveigh against each other's fitness for office.

MIND GAMES

Both candidates have used the debates to try to rattle their opponents: Clinton baited Trump by questioning his wealth and his business acumen. Trump tried to throw off Clinton by seating three women who have accused her husband of sexual impropriety in the front row of the audience at the second debate. Odds are both candidates have saved some fresh theatrics for the final debate.

Assange's status a mystery

Midway through releasing a series of damaging disclosures about U.S. presidential contender Hillary Clinton, WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange says his hosts at the Ecuadorian Embassy in London abruptly cut him off from the internet.

The news adds another layer of intrigue to a campaign that has been roiled by dramatic leaks and allegations of state-sponsored subversion.

"We can confirm Ecuador cut off Assange's internet access Saturday, 5pm GMT, shortly after publication of Clinton's Goldman Sachs (speeches)," the group said in a message posted to Twitter. Tuesday, the group claimed U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry had intervened to ask Ecuador to stop Assange from publishing documents about Clinton. The State Department denied the allegation.

A pretzel by any other name is just as sweet

Hotdogs, or at least the name, will soon be off the menu for a U.S. fast food chain selling the popular snack in Malaysia.

The chain, Auntie Anne's, has been told by Islamic authorities that its popular Pretzel Dog, which contains no dog meat, has to be renamed as it is confusing for Muslim consumers.

The Malaysian Islamic Development Department has told the U.S. company to banish the word "dog" from its menu and suggested that the frank-further wrapped in a pretzel be called Pretzel Sausage as part of conditions to obtain halal certification based on Islamic dietary laws. Dogs are deemed unclean in Islam.

"It is more appropriate to use the name Pretzel Sausage," the department's halal director Sirajuddin Suhaimie told local media.

Iraqi advance on Mosul slows after day of fighting

The pace of operations slowed Tuesday in the fight to retake Mosul from Daesh, as Iraqi forces advancing to the east and south of the city began pushing toward larger villages and encountering civilian populations.

Iraq's Kurdish fighters, also known as the peshmerga, largely paused their advance, according to commanders stationed along the front to Mosul's east, consolidating gains from the previous day.

Customers choose firms that share their values

Derek Woodgate didn't know it at the time, but seeing a documentary about childhood malnutrition would change his life.

He watched the film last year and knows it was the catalyst that helped push him and his wife Jen to start Cuddle+Kind, a company that donates 10 meals for every hand-knit doll sold.

Mark Schwartz, an associate professor of business ethics, said it's becoming important for companies to show that they care about more than just the bottom line.

"Over the years, it's become much more mainstream," said Schwartz, who teaches at York University's School of Administrative Studies in Toronto.

"The larger companies in the world, they really have no choice. All the industries realize that they have to be seen as giving back to the society and the community in which they operate."

He said customers may be more willing to choose businesses that share their same values or ethics, if all other factors, such as price, quality and services are the same compared to a competitor.

"There's a bigger impact when the contribution is more directly linked to the nature of your product and your service," said Schwartz.

The larger companies, they really have no choice.

"If you buy a pair of shoes, and you know a pair of shoes is going to a child in the developing world, it would make more of a difference."

Derek Woodgate said customers like knowing that their purchase of a colourful hand knit doll also helps support fair wages for female artisans in Peru and also provide meals to Breakfast Club of Canada, World Food Program USA and Children's Hunger Fund, which feeds children in schools and orphanages around the world.

When brothers Kalen and Derrick Emsley started Tentree in 2012, their mission was simple: how could they make money to plant more trees?

They launched a casual clothing line that would plant 10 trees for every item purchased.

Four years and a deal on CBC's Dragon's Den later, Tentree now sells clothes in shops across Canada, the U.S. and Australia. In that time, it has planted more than 9.4 million trees, mostly in Madagascar and Ethiopia.

He said customers are willing to pay a few dollars more for their T-shirts, jogging pants and sweaters if they believe in the company's ethos.

Cindy Hardy named her soap business Joa Bath and Body because it loosely translates to "for good" in Korean.

The former legal assistant makes natural soaps from ingredients such as honey, lavender and oatmeal in her Ottawa kitchen and donates a bar of soap for every bar sold to women's shelters.

Since 2008, the company has given away more than 100 bars.

Minister's Twitter hacked

The Belgian government says a profane Twitter message featuring a photo of former prime minister Stephen Harper is the work of hackers, not their foreign affairs minister.

Someone accessed the account belonging to Didier Reynders, using it to send a meme of an angry-looking Harper telling off Canadians, complete with the F-word. The subtext of the tweet appears to be the fact that a region of Belgium is standing firm in its opposition to the Canada-EU free trade deal, known as CETA.

A tweet from the department's verified account Tuesday said recent messages published on Reynders's account were not his.

The approval of the deal between Canada and the European Union countries has come under threat this week after the Wallonia region in Belgium rejected the deal amid fears its farmers could face cheap Canadian produce and that many of the labour standards they fought for will be swept away.

Canadians split on carbon tax

Canadians have mixed feelings about Ottawa's new carbon tax plan, but tilt slightly more in favour — especially young adults and higher earners, says a new Forum Research poll.

Close to one half of those polled, or 45 per cent, gave a thumbs up to the carbon pricing strategy that was announced earlier this month by the federal Liberal government, it says. However, 41 per cent don't approve, the survey found. It also revealed that 14 per cent of Canadians do not have an opinion one way or the other on the tax plan.

The majority of approval (at 52 per cent) came from the youngest people surveyed, those aged 18 to 34, while 51 per cent of the wealthiest surveyed (earning $100,000 to $250,000 in annual income) were in favour, the study found.

Provincially, the strongest support came from Quebec respondents at 58 per cent, while the lowest support is in Alberta at just 26 per cent, the poll says. A majority of the best-educated (post graduate studies) respondents, at 57 per cent, were also in favour of the plan.

What's the small idea?

When I listen to Albertans, I sometimes hear comments that we're smaller than other banks.

Well they're right, we are smaller. And while 98% of all Alberta businesses are considered "small" too, they're a big deal to our province. Not only do they employ most of us, they're the principle drivers of our economy.

Being smaller means we're not on hold for Toronto HQ. We're in your communities, coffee shops, co-ops, hockey rinks and businesses, helping Albertan job creators innovate and grow.

Smaller means that we can specialize, focussing on entrepreneurs' business and personal livelihoods—rather than profits for far away stakeholders.

So yes, ATB is smaller. And for Albertans, that's a big advantage.

If you're happy with your bank, you should stay there. If not, ATB listens.

EMMA TEITEL ON PRESS BIAS

The most popular way to blow off steam among those frustrated with the U.S. election is to excoriate — who else — ‘the media.’

It doesn't matter where you live: Donald Trump will find you.

Not literally, of course. (Even if he is elected president of the United States next month, world domination is not likely in the cards for the Donald).

Rather, he will find you virtually, in your newsfeed and anywhere you browse online. The rabid Republican candidate's cyber-presence is so pronounced, in fact, some Trump-wary Internet users have begun downloading special browser extensions that have the power to literally erase all mention of the candidate from their Internet experience.

For those with a scatological bent, there now exists “Firewall Trump,” a browser extension that turns all mentions of the candidate's name into smiling poop emojis.

But there appears to exist another more popular way to blow off steam among those frustrated with the U.S. election, a method that doesn't involve the downloading of name-eradicating browsers or the cursing of candidates. I'm talking about the excoriation of — who else — “the media.”

Yes, the big, bad mainstream media, argue American conservative commentators like Dinesh D'Souza, is “Hillary's secret weapon.”

This is familiar territory; every election cycle, be it

American or Canadian, conservatives cry liberal media bias.

But what's astonishing this time around is how many liberals themselves appear to be convinced that media organizations

ing, people, both left and right, aren't too fond of media: according to a survey by the American Press Institute, 41 per cent of Americans “say they have hardly any confidence” in the press.

CAN YOU BLAME US FOR PUBLISHING THIS? Robert John Burck, a.k.a. the Naked Cowboy, sings a song urging people to vote for Donald Trump, outside Trump Tower in New York on Tuesday. GETTY IMAGES are stirring up conspiracy and peddling scandal in the Trump-Clinton campaign when they ought to be focused on “the real issues.”

I've lost count of the number of comments and posts I've seen from otherwise progressive friends on Facebook who seriously question the motives behind the media's reportage of Trump's bad behaviour and more recently the motives behind a New York Times article, in which multiple women allege Trump sexually assaulted them.

This mistrust isn't relegated to my own Facebook feed. Statistically speak-

Perhaps then, a reminder is in order that when a candidate denies sexually assaulting women it's in the public interest for media to test that claim. Candidates make statements and media scrutinize and report on those statements; the alleged criminal behaviour of a political candidate is relevant to the democratic process, and it's the media's responsibility to cover it.

And for what it's worth, as David E. McCraw, lawyer for the New York Times, pointed out recently in a letter to Trump's attorneys, media didn't introduce the topic of Trump's alleged assaults and indiscretions. Trump introduced those things — chose to talk endlessly about them, in fact — on his own.

“Nothing in our article,” McCraw writes, “has had the slightest effect on the reputation that Mr. Trump, through his own words and actions, has already created for himself.”

I understand that many people are overwhelmed by the volume of Trump-related stories appearing daily across their screens. Trust me, I too am overwhelmed. But volume is not proof of bias. It's often proof that something is seriously wrong in the world.

That said I also understand personal aversion to media. We are, by and large, an insufferable lot of socially anxious know-it-alls; the kind of people who interject at dinner parties to offer kernels of sobering, fact-based wisdom nobody asked for. (“Well actually, I wrote about the housing crisis last month ...”)

And yet, like parking enforcement, elementary-school lunch monitors and tax-collection agencies, we are a necessary aggravation, whose absence would be a far worse blight on the earth than our presence.

Without us, dangerous blowhards like Donald Trump would continue to crowd your newsfeeds all the same, only their error-ridden invective would go largely unchecked, and the “scandals” so many of us bemoan having to read about every day would cease to be scandals. They would be something far worse. They'd be secrets.

So despise us all you like, but please, bear with us.

Inclusivity is every sports fan's responsibility

We all know sports teams have racist names.

Despite being asked repeatedly to drop them, these names abide. But now that jocks are more willing to talk about racism, maybe the time has come for teams and fans to look for more ways to bring everyone into the game.

Recall that before the Toronto Blue Jays' current playoff series, some media, including the Jays' radio broadcaster Jerry Howarth and Huffington Post Canada, said they wouldn't be using the Cleveland team's nickname. Then, on Monday, an Ontario judge declined celebrity architect Douglas Cardinal's request to ban the team's name.

I'd prefer not to use the name in this space, but suffice it to say that the team's mascot, Chief Wahoo, he of toothy minstrel-show grin and a feather in his hair, is pretty much a full-card jackpot in Is This Racist? Bingo.

Washington's NFL team, Chicago's hockey team, and Edmonton's CFL team are also being called on to change their racist team names. The pressure to find names that are both socially conscious and emotionally evocative can lead to awkwardness like the Ottawa Redblacks (isn't that just maroon?). That's not to mention all the nicknames that sound as though a committee of really bored and geographically confused people chose them. What is an Orlando Magic? Where exactly in Utah are the Jazz?

The push for dramatic but problem-free names can lead to names that are offensive to users of proper grammar. I'm looking at you, Montreal Impact. In naming and renaming sports teams, we could try the system used by international soccer teams. Jays fans are, after all, cultivating an English-style hooligan culture. So: What if Edmonton's football team was called, just spit-balling here, the Edmonton Football Team? As a naming convention, it's not exactly inspiring but Liverpool or Chelsea fans don't seem to mind.

Such rebranding exercises would allow teams like Edmonton's and Cleveland's to learn important lessons about their fanbases. Anyone who was into your team precisely because it had a racially flagrant name is maybe not a fan you want.

The rest of the fans will probably stick around through a renaming, and in the process they'll be given an opportunity to ask some overdue questions about what kinds of sports fans they want to be. It's not enough to be upset about a team's racist name, or even to support a change to a new one. Find out what it means to indigenous people who are #NotYourMascot.

Whether it's demanding that your team be more environmentally conscious, that stadiums offer more accessibility, that games be affordable for low-income fans, or that a team doesn't encourage white supremacy, there's a way for every fan to take their seat in the stands knowing that their love of the game does some good in the world.

COLD FACTS OF TOMATO STORAGE Any Italian grandmother will warn that putting tomatoes in the fridge will compromise their flavour. Well now, science can back that up. According to a new study, cooling tomatoes below 12 degrees Celsius stops them from making some of the substances that contribute to their taste. With the new detailed knowledge of how that happens, "maybe we can breed tomatoes to change that," said researcher Denise Tieman of the University of Florida in Gainesville. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fat 85.5g

HERE'S WHY

Equivalent to 4 servings of Honey Garlic Chicken from Manchu Wok in fat.

The Rotisserie Beef Messy Stacked sandwich tops a beef sandwich with coleslaw, mayo, cheese and fries, while serving it up with an additional large side of fries and creamy coleslaw. The result is a total overdose of calories and fat, about your entire day's worth! In fact, the entire Quarter Chicken Dinner is lighter than the beef sandwich itself, and that's before counting any of the additional sides and condiments! Stick to the Quarter Chicken Dinner to avoid a food hangover — your heart and hips will thank you!

LIQUID ASSETS

California wines want you to know they're old

As it closes in on the 250th anniversary of the opening of its first winery it must irk California to be lumped in with the gaggle of New World countries who wear the lack of consumer awareness regarding their winemaking histories like a badge of cool.

Proving my point is the number of Golden State wineries who have started bragging about their origins. Fetzer Vineyards is a winery that I'm betting was bottling their first vintage in 1968 to the tune of The Beatles White Album, which was released in the fall of the same year. A lot has happened to Fetzer in nearly five decades. Bought by Chile's Concha y Toro in 2011, its wines, while keeping their personalities firmly Californian, have developed a relaxed drinkability thanks to the influence of the Chileans. Fetzer's 2014 Valley Oaks Cabernet Sauvignon ($11.95-$15.99) has a mix of black fruit and balanced tannins.

APPLE & CHEDDAR

An easy hors d'oeuvre that guests will think you sweat over

Ricardo Larrivée

Torstar News Service

If you're anything like me, you're drowning in apples this time of year. That's the trouble with being a dad of three: When family traditions include an annual apple-picking outing, that means three times the apples!

Now, I love apples as much as the next guy, but I'm always on the lookout for interesting ways to prepare them.

That's why I developed this recipe: It's fast, easy and perfect for your next soirée, whether as a starter for a sit-down get-together or hors d'oeuvre for a cocktail party. The recipe plays on the classic Canadian combo of apple and cheddar, but here I've reversed the order, making this a savoury, cheesy treat.

The thin Cortland slices are just softened in the oven, so they retain some of their crispness and all of their sweet-tart flavour.

Mixed with the buttery puff pastry and the thin layer of crème fraîche, the tangy cheese is the pièce de résistance in this rich, autumnal crowd-pleaser.

Best of all, your guests will never guess it took you less than 15 minutes.

Apple and Cheddar Tart

Prep: 15 minutes
Cooking: 20 minutes
Serves: 6

Ingredients:

- 1/2 lb (225g) store-bought puff pastry, thawed
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) crème fraîche or sour cream
- 1/2 Cortland apple, unpeeled, cored and thinly sliced
- 1 tbsp chopped fresh chives
- 3 1/2 oz (100 g) cheddar cheese, thinly sliced

This apple and cheddar tart serves six. CONTRIBUTED

Directions:

1. With the rack in the lowest position, preheat the oven to 400°F (200°C). Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.
2. On a lightly floured surface, roll out the puff pastry into a 10-inch (25 cm) square. With a fork, prick the entire surface of the dough. Place the dough on the baking sheet.

3. Spread the cream on the entire surface of the dough. Cover with the apple slices.

Sprinkle with the chives and top with the cheese slices.

4. Bake for about 20 minutes or until the cheese is golden brown. Let cool. Cut and serve as hors-d'oeuvres or an appetizer.

DiCaprio linked to Malaysian fund scandal

LEGAL ISSUES

Star says he's cooperating with authorities in investigation

Leonardo DiCaprio says he's awaiting direction from the U.S. Justice Department regarding any ill-gotten funds that may have supported his environmental foundation or 2013 film The Wolf of Wall Street.

The Oscar-winning actor released a statement through his representatives Tuesday saying he will return any gifts or donations connected to a Malaysian wealth fund, pending a fraud investigation of that fund by the U.S. and other countries. Court filings in connection with the investigations allege a complex money laundering scheme intended to enrich top-level officials of the Malaysian government-controlled wealth fund.

"Both Mr. DiCaprio and (the Leonardo DiCaprio Foundation) continue to be entirely supportive of all efforts to assure that justice is done in this matter," the statement said.

"Mr. DiCaprio is grateful for the lead and instruction of the government on how to accomplish this."

The Justice Department says that at least $3.5 billion has been stolen from the wealth fund, known as 1MDB, by people close to Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak. Najib created the fund in 2009 shortly after he took office to promote economic development projects in the Asian nation, but the fund accumulated billions in debts over the years.

The Justice Department has initiated action to seize $1.3 billion it says was taken from the fund to buy assets in the U.S., including luxury properties in

New York and California, a $35 million jet, art by Vincent Van Gogh and Claude Monet, and financing of The Wolf of Wall Street, according to federal government complaints filed in Los Angeles in July.

The government complaints also say that more than $700 million has landed in the accounts of "Malaysian Official 1." They didn't name the official, but appear to be referring to Najib.

The Justice Department complaints also do not mention DiCaprio by name, but make an oblique reference to "Hollywood Actor 1," who during his Golden Globe acceptance speech thanked "the entire production team" and singled out several people close to Najib implicated in the scandal as "collaborators" on the film.

DiCaprio won the Golden Globe for his Wolf of Wall Street performance.

The Justice Department

complaints identify the collaborators by name, including Najib's stepson, Riza Shahriz Abdul Aziz, who co-founded movie production company Red Granite Pictures.

Besides The Wolf of Wall Street, other films produced by Red Granite include 2015's Daddy's Home and 2014's Dumb and Dumber To.

Last week, a Swiss rain-forest charity demanded that DiCaprio resign from his post as a United Nations "Messenger of Peace" if he doesn't disclose his financial ties to the Malaysian fund.

But on Monday, a U.N. spokesman expressed continued support for the actor.

Stephane Dujarric said he understands that DiCaprio's foundation is working with the relevant authorities in the U.S. to resolve the issue.

"We continue to welcome his public work on behalf of climate change," Dujarric said.

JOHANNA SCHNELLER WHAT I'M WATCHING

Not every web hit needs a series

THE SHOW: Haters Back Off, Season 1, Episode 8 (Netflix)
THE MOMENT: The false poignancy

Miranda Sings (series creator Colleen Ballinger), who believes she's destined to be a star and ignores all evidence to the contrary, is on stage belting out I Will Always Love You in her nasal over-tremolo. Owen (Dylan Playfair), the singer she adores, cuts her off.

"That was so funny, that was a little joke I wanted to play on you," he says.

The audience sighs with relief.

Owen asks Miranda for the engagement ring he gave her backstage, to hold until he proposes to April.

Miranda thought the ring was for her; she won't let it go. They tussle.

Owen proposes. April accepts. The crowd claps. "Stop clapping!" Miranda orders.

The audience titters.

"Why are you laughing?" she screeches. "Why is it funny that someone would love me?"

I'll tell you why: You forgot to give yourself even a single redeeming quality.

Haters Back Off is one of several new shows that began life as a web series. But unlike HBO's

Miranda Sings (Colleen Ballinger) is insufferable in Haters Back Off. CONTRIBUTED

High Maintenance and Insecure, this idea is way too thin to stretch from two minutes to 30.

Miranda is grating in a webisode; in a full episode, she's obnoxious. And through an entire season, as she terrorizes her family, remains doggedly ignorant, and simply repeats those notes over and over, she's unbearable. It's a mistake a lot of TV shows are making: confusing a flawed character with a total jerk.

You can't give us eight episodes of a one-note monster, and then suddenly expect us to care when she cries in the rain.

Johanna Schneller is a media connoisseur who zeroes in on pop-culture moments. She appears Monday through Thursday.

Q5 delivers with tech, performance

REVIEW

Audi's latest SUV offering sure to please

Jonathan Yarkony
AutoGuide.com

As little as 12 years ago, Audi didn't have an SUV, but in 2009 the Q5 took the small premium crossover segment by storm.

What was it about the Q5 that so resonated with luxury shoppers and took the brand to new heights, becoming a global bestseller in the process? Aside from Audi's impeccable interiors and solid, reassuring driving feel, the Q5 had just enough cargo and passenger space for family living, and a range of power-trains that offered consumers their choice of efficiency or a bit of excitement along with their utility.

The new Q5 is based on Audi's modular MLB platform, and although that is the same architecture underpinning the new A4, Audi engineers claimed the Q5 will have more in common with the next-generation. The Q5 grows in every direction, but as with any new Audi, the platform is a mix of high-tensile steel and aluminum aimed at saving weight and increasing rigidity.

Moving up to the driver's seat brings Audi's strengths back to the forefront, where one can focus on the materials, craftsmanship and seamless integration of technology.

With the level of technology coming into play, it's increasingly important to solve the myriad ergonomic and interaction issues, and Audi's Multi-Media Interface and Virtual Cockpit offer several ways for one to operate navigation, audio and car systems. My favourite is the steering-wheel thumb wheel and buttons on the left spoke, which let you access the most common functions without lifting a hand off the wheel. The latest addition to Audi's MMI is the touchpad, which recognizes your scribbles and translates them into letters when you input information for route guidance or a contact and is said to offer tablet-like pinch and zoom control, though not in the models we sampled.

Although the Q5 will be loaded to the roof rack with driver-assistance systems, the focus of the event was its essential driving quality in a variety of settings. Exploring the southern tip of Mexico's Baja Peninsula, we set off from our resort on some intermediate highways, skirted the edges of a small mountain range, climbing the twisting and sweeping curves, picking our way through the narrow cobbled streets of a small rural town, cutting across the landscape on a dirt road, driving onto a sandy beach for photo ops and then cruising back on a highway that saw us reaching and holding autobahn speeds. It's hard to say whether the chassis or the engine was the star, because both were so impressive in every way, and perhaps it was their seamless cooperation that sets a new benchmark.

In the end, the Q5 nails every point that a small luxury SUV needs to and is sure to make many shoppers happy.

SONDORS

Making the three-wheeled e-car a Reality

A new company has an ambitious plan of building "the most attractive, affordable, and practical electric car ever with base price starting at $10,000." That company is called Sondors, founded by Storm Sondors, who raised $10-million and delivered 15,000 electric bikes. The Sondors eBike has since become the largest electric bike distributor in the U.S. and is currently sold in 67 other countries worldwide. And like the electric bike, Sondors plans on cutting out the middleman by allowing buyers to pre-order their cars online before they are custom built and delivered to their doorstep. The Sondors electric car is a three-seat, three-wheeled vehicle and the company plans on offering three different range options: 50 miles (80 kilometres), 100 miles (160 kilometres) and 200 miles (322 kilometres).

After teasing Top Gear fans for what seems like ages, the former hosts of the popular motoring show have released the first official trailer for The Grand Tour. ### Henrik Fisker launches new company

Henrik Fisker is making another attempt at producing electric vehicles. Now that Fisker Automotive is officially dead, with its new Chinese owners renaming it Karma, Henrik Fisker has created Fisker, Inc. and plans to show off a premium, all-electric vehicle in the second half of 2017. In an interview with Bloomberg, Fisker said the new vehicle will be a "spiritual successor" to the Fisker Karma originally launched in 2012.

CARS MINI'S HEAD OF DESIGN COVETS

MINIs are not only quirky and fun to look at, but they're also a blast to drive. It's rare that a car can avoid looking aggressive and still portray a sporty personality, but that's just part of MINI's charm. Christopher Weil, the head of MINI design, says he currently drives a grey Countryman, but gave us an eclectic list of his all-time favourite designs. SAMI HAJ-ASSAD/AUTOGUIDE.COM

1 Lamborghini Miura

The go-to choice for designers and car lovers is the Lamborghini Miura. The beautiful coupe is held as the benchmark for design and performance and is often referenced as the first true supercar. This mid-engined Italian beauty is on everyone's list.

2 Toyota 2000GT

Here's an interesting choice. The Toyota 2000GT was one of the first Japanese supercars and a beautiful, Asian interpretation on the Jaguar E-Type. It featured a long hood and short deck, and under the hood was an awesome 2.0-litre six-cylinder engine. Nowadays, it's seen as the first truly desirable and collectible Japanese vehicle, with examples selling at auction for over $1-million. Only 351 of these cars were ever made and some Boomers may remember the Toyota as Bond's ride in You Only Live Twice, even though that model had to have its roof lopped off to accommodate Sean Connery's 6'2" frame. It's rare to hear the Japanese car mentioned by designers, but its inclusion here shows Weil's appreciation of cars from all over the world.

3 Porsche 914

Another oddball choice here. Rarely considered as a high-performance vehicle, the 914 was developed in collaboration with a then-rival: Volkswagen.

4 Porsche 930

Weil owned and sadly got rid of a Porsche 930, but he fact that this designer even lived with a 1970's 911 Turbo shows his true automotive enthusiasm.

The first step of a steep climb

Josh Donaldson opens the scoring with a solo home run during Game 4 of the American League Championship Series in Toronto on Tuesday. CHARLIE RIEDEL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bruce Arthur

They're probably not coming back, right? No, put that out of your mind. Coming back from 0-3 in a best-of-seven series is probably hopeless, like never losing a sock in the laundry, or beating traffic. Nobody ever really beats traffic. In Toronto, traffic beats you.

But the Toronto Blue Jays, facing elimination in the American League Championship Series, beat Cleveland 5-1 in Game 4. They now trail 3-1, which is better than 3-0, if not by a lot. Trailing 3-1 just means you put off the execution until Wednesday, maybe.

"We're in the same boat as today," said reliever Jason Grilli. "If it means getting in the World Series, we've got to win every game."

"I mean, it definitely feels good to get a win," said catcher Russell Martin. "And that's how it starts. We won four in a row to start the playoffs, and I believe that we can do it."

I mean, what else can he say? One team has come back from 0-3 ever. But still in Game 4, Cleveland had to pitch Corey Kluber on short rest for the first time in his life and he lasted only 89 pitches. If there's a Game 7, he will have to do it again.

"I think seeing him so recently was good for us as well," said designated hitter Michael Saunders. "Understanding what his ball was doing. His stuff was as good as it's always been. (But) there's that familiarity."

Cleveland manager Terry Francona thought Kluber's legs got tired. It took until the third inning of Game 4, but Josh Donaldson smashed a two-out home run to left-centre, and the Jays held a lead over Cleveland for the first time in October. One inning later, with men at first and second, Ezequiel Carrera — "a prime-time player," according to shortstop Troy Tulowitzki — slapped at a first-pitch curveball, and it arced gently up over the infield but short of the outfield.

GAME 4 In Toronto

Tulowitzki read the play like a pro and scored from second to make it 2-0.

The two runs mattered in this one because starter Aaron Sanchez was cruising along. Cleveland's two hits came from their No. 8 and 9 hitters. Sanchez is a killer, and it probably would have been nice to see him start twice in this series.

"You don't need to be better than he was today," Martin said.

There were other signs of life from the bats. Edwin Encarnacion hit one to the track. Saunders crushed an upper-deck slider foul and singled twice. Bautista hit one to the track. Tulowitzki hit a single off the top of the wall. Carrera had excellent at-bats. Baseball is a funny game, though you don't always laugh.

"Good teams are always lucky," said Saunders, quite seriously.

And in the seventh, they loaded the bases when Cleveland decided on facing Edwin Encarnacion promptly spanked a single up the middle that scored two. Didn't try to do too much. A cushion, finally. The Jays hadn't been able to breathe all series long.

So, now what? Cleveland will start a rookie named Ryan Merritt Wednesday. He pitched 11 innings this year. He's left-handed, and doesn't throw hard. Toronto will counter with Marco Estrada. Hmm.

It's probably not happening. Three more wins is a mountain.

But ... Cleveland is trying to advance to the World Series with two starting pitchers, plus a bullpen that can lay waste to the Earth. It's a tight-rope, not a paved road to the centre of town.

"Why not us?" Grilli asked. I guess we'll see.

Bruce Arthur is a sports columnist with the Toronto Star

4 Takeaways from Game 4 of the ALCS

1 Sanchez delivers

Aaron Sanchez set the tone for his outing with a clean first inning. Touching 97 m.p.h. with his sinking fastball and throwing curveballs for strikes, Sanchez struck out the first two batters before inducing a weak groundout from Francisco Lindor. Sanchez's early dominance seemed to have a calming effect — not only for him, but the rest of the team — as he went on to hold Cleveland to just one run on two hits and two walks over six innings, while earning nine groundouts.

2 Donaldson connects

Josh Donaldson had yet to homer in these playoffs until the third inning, when he barrelled up Corey Kluber's slider and sent it beyond the wall in left-centre. The fact Donaldson hit Kluber's breaking ball is key as well, because Cleveland's pitching staff has been hammering the Jays with curves and sliders. Donaldson also saved a run with his glove in the fifth inning by making a spectacular diving play on a sharp grounder.

3 Cecil's seventh

Much has been made this series about the dominance of Cleveland's bullpen, but the Jays' relief corps has also done its part. The Jays' bullpen has yet to allow a single run in the series, extending their scoreless streak to 9-2/3 innings. The biggest performance was by lefty Brett Cecil, who threw a perfect seventh inning against three right-handed hitters. Jason Grilli and Roberto Osuna followed with two scoreless innings of their own to secure the win.

4 Encarnacion breaks out

Rarely do teams intentionally walk the batter ahead of the league leader in RBIs, but that's exactly what Cleveland did in the seventh inning, loading the bases for Edwin Encarnacion with none out in order to set up a force at every base. Encarnacion, who had yet to drive in a run in the series, bounced a single off the mound and into centre field to score a pair of important insurance runs. ## Desharnais hits double as Montoya stars between pipes

David Desharnais scored twice and Al Montoya made 36 saves for the shutout as the Montreal Canadiens won their home opener 4-0 over the Pittsburgh Penguins on Tuesday night.

Off-season signing Alexander Radulov got his first goal as a Canadien — with Montoya picking up an assist — while Max Pacioretty also scored for Montreal (2-0-1). Montoya, who signed from the Florida Panthers this summer, picked up his sixth career shutout.

The Penguins (2-1-1), coming off an overtime loss at home Monday night, played their first road game of the season.

Rumble eager for his title rematch

From the moment he tapped the Octagon canvas back in May of 2015, Anthony (Rumble) Johnson has been thinking about this rematch.

Daniel Cormier won the light heavyweight title that night when he submitted the feared striker with a choke in the third round in Las Vegas, but Johnson has been on a tear ever since, and vows their UFC 206 bout Dec. 10 at Toronto's Air Canada Centre will be a different story. # RECIPE Pumpkin Curried Soup

Ceri Marsh & Laura Keogh
For Metro Canada

This warmly spiced soup is supremely creamy and packed with vitamin-rich pumpkin making it the ideal fall comfort dish.

Ready in 40 minutes

Prep time: 30 minutes
Cook time: 10 minutes
Serves 4

Ingredients

- 1 or 2 glugs of olive oil
- 1 onion, diced
- 2 cloves of garlic, minced
- 1 tsp ginger, minced
- 1 tsp cumin
- 1 tsp ground coriander
- 1 tsp curry powder
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 x 14 oz. pumpkin purée (not pumpkin pie filling!)
- 2 cups low-sodium vegetable or chicken stock
- 1 cup water
- 1 x 14 oz. coconut milk (Try lite for all the flavour and less fat)

Directions

1. Warm olive oil in a large pot over medium heat. Add your minced onions and garlic until they begin to soften and your kitchen starts smelling great. Now add all of the spices. Stir them into the onion mix and let them cook for a few minutes. Keep stirring so they don't start to stick to the bottom of your pot.

2. Empty your pumpkin purée into the pot and give it a mix with the onions and spices. Now add the stock, water and coconut milk. Let simmer for about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Don't let it get too hot or the coconut milk may split.

3. Turn off the heat and allow the soup to cool a bit before either putting into the blender in batches to purée or just giving a whiz with a submersion blender. Warm again and serve.

IT'S ALL IN THE STARS Your daily horoscope by Francis Drake

Aries March 21 - April 20
Think before you speak today, especially to partners and close friends, because you might blurt out something you later regret. Be aware of this. Count to three before you open your mouth.

Taurus April 21 - May 21
Your work routine will be interrupted today. It might be because you feel feisty and independent about something and refuse to do it. Or perhaps high-tech equipment breaks down.

Gemini May 22 - June 21
This is an accident-prone day for your kids, so be vigilant. You also can expect social plans to suddenly change. Everything is up for grabs today!

Cancer June 22 - July 23
Be diplomatic with family members to avoid an argument. However, this is an accident-prone day at home. Small appliances might break down, or minor breakages could occur.

Leo July 24 - Aug. 23
This is a mildly accident-prone day for you. It's also the classic day for you to shoot from the hip and say something that you later wish you did not. Therefore, think before you speak!

Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Today you might find money, or you might lose money. Ditto for your possessions. Something about your finances is unpredictable.

Libra Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Guard against knee-jerk reactions today. Be like the wise carpenter: Measure twice, cut once.

Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You are restless, edgy and nervous today. This might be subconscious or you might be aware of it. Avoid doing anything that is upsetting or nerve-racking.

Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
A younger friend might surprise you today by doing something reckless or by suggesting something unusual. Be careful, because today is a crapshoot!

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
This is not a good day to ask for permission or approval from bosses. In fact, they might say something that upsets you. Don't quit your day job.

Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Travel plans will be changed, cancelled or rescheduled today. Likewise, classes and schedules pertaining to higher education will be unreliable.

Pisces Feb. 20 - March 20
Stay on top of your banking and money needs, because something unexpected might affect your finances. Checks could bounce. An important bill might be due. Is the posse after you?
